The Democrats Attack Secrecy

An attack on secrecy in government now is under way on both the national and state levels. The efforts will be cheered as helpful in the never-ending fight to get information to the public.

The public policy committee of the Wisconsin Democratic party has offered bills in both houses of the legislature to require most government meetings to be open to the public. In Washington, the house subcommittee on freedom of information under the direction of Rep. John E. Moss. (D. Calif.) is back in business again. The national effort will be a drawn out amount and the results may not immediately become apparent but nevertheless it is an important piece of work.

The Wisconsin anti-secrecy measure includes most of the provisions of bills offered in previous sessions by the Wisconsin Daily Newspaper league, and therefore has the benefit of the thinking of practical newspaper workers as well as of persons in political office.

The Wisconsin proposals require all governmental meetings to be open to the public except in the following instances:

"Deliberations after court trials or quasi-judicial hearings.

"Discussions of personnel matters unless the affected person asks for a public

"Probation, parole or crime detection

"Deliberations on the purchase or sale of property or negotiations for competitive or bargaining reasons."

The Democrats in Wisconsin began to push for an anti-secrecy law several years ago when the Republicans were in full control of the legislature. The bills offered then were a part of the Democratic policy of needling the party in power and were not intended to become the law of the state.

Such bills often were offered with emotional statements claiming it to be the policy of the Democratic party to bring the truth to the people through open meetings. The implication was that the Republicans were bent upon concealing such information and this insured the opposition of the Republicans and the failure of the legislation.

Now things are different. The Democrats have control of the governor's office and the assembly. The freedom of information program being offered apparently is a serious legislative proposal. The sponsors of this bill have not engaged in breastbeating but have merely stated "a representative government of the American type is dependent upon an informed electorate" and that the bills offered would open the door "to all meetings of all state and local governing and administrative bodies, commissions, committees and agen-

It's a good statement and since the Republicans now are in the minority, and have every reason to want access to as much government information as possible, there is little reason for them to oppose the bills in the senate where they have con-

Secrecy has not been a serious problem in Wisconsin in recent years. Nevertheless these bills are important and should have the enthusiastic support of all friends of good government. They are before the legislature in a rare combination of circumstances favorable to passage. It is an opportunity that should not be neglected, for everyone must know that the desire for secrecy never dies, it never can be stamped out and will spring to life again and again after years of dormant existence. The bills offered will help to keep secrecy at a minimum and for that reason they are important.

*Harold Stassen Drums for Peace

Harold Stassen, former special assistant to President Eisenhower, still has ideas about disarmament despite his abortive efforts to reach agreements with the Russians. Speaking before the World Affairs Council in New York, he offered suggestions about settling the Berlin imbroglio and the future of all Germany. The value of the suggestions seems to rest almost entirely on putting Russia on the defensive.

Stassen's overall plan is for a united Germany, a member of both NATO and the United Nations, but "neutralized" as far as armed forces of either East or West are concerned and with a positive ban upon nuclear weapons. This is the so-called Rapacki plan. As a lure to Russia. Stassen would freeze socialized and private industries as they are for ten years. Germany would pay part of the cost of relocating the armed forces of the United States, the Soviet Union. France and England, and the neutralized buffer state would include small portions of both France and Russia and be a forerunner of other such demilitarized

In this age of space missiles, these demilitarized areas seem a little anachronistic. Recent United States experiments have shown that underground nuclear tests are almost impossible to detect and obviously nuclear weapons may be smuggled. But Stassen, in what appears to be his greatest weakness, simply ignores those facts of international life which don't tie in with his

A more thorough scholar of the question of Germany, Dr. W. Friedmann, professor of law and director of international legal research at Columbia university, and author of The Albed Mildary Government of Gernary, has suggested United Nations supervision of Berlin, But Dr. Friedmann has few illusions about Russian participation. He writes that "the Western powers should . . . actively explore the possibility of U. N. supervision over the status of Berhn by a token U. N. force. Such a contingent could not defend West Berlin against a Soviet attack, but neither can the present token Aliied forces. Any interference with the status established by U. N. guarantee, and protected by U. N. force, would be an open act of aggression."

Dr. Friedmann also suggests free elections in both West and East Berlin under U. N. supervision but realistically acknowledges that such a plan must be turned down by the Russians since "it would result in an anti-Communist majority." A proposal for free elections in both East and West Germany with "freedom for the new government to decide whether to remain in NATO or not" also would be unacceptable to the Russians since it would imply the extension of missile bases to the Oder-Neisse line. Dr. Friedmann, in fact, insists that the West must recognize that it will be dealing with a partitioned Germany for some time to come.

There might be some value in propos ing to Russia that the United Nations take over in both East and West Berlin, knowing the Soviet must refuse. But the danger of acceptance also could be troublesome, an angle which even Dr. Friedmann seems to forget. The present token Allied force could not resist an all-out attack by Russia, it is undoubtedly true, but it would fight, and such a fight would lead to war. A token U. N. force might be overrun and the "clear act of aggression" be merely so voted and censured in the U. N. as happened in the case of Hungary. Probably this, too, would lead to war and the Allies would have lost some ground and considerable advantage which they now hold while the Russians would be near at hand. The Russians might also decide that the replacement of the Allied forces by a U. N. force means the West would not fight.

It is the threat of war and retaliation. dangerous though the policy may be, which is the deterrent to hold Red aggression all over the world. It is the willingness of the West Germans and the Allies to fight for Berlin which keeps the Soviet from swallowing that city and everything else

We sympathize with Stassen and his ever present optimism for peace through agreement. But he beats a broken drum.

Cities Just Don't Seem to Matter Much

From The Calgary, Alberta, Herald Like Calgary, Edmonton is facing a major annexation problem.

Like Calgary, Edmonton is not getting aid comparable to needs from the provincial government Sympathy maybe, but not real financial help.

Indeed, there are indications that the government plans to make the financial aspects to annexation even more difficult for the cities than present circumstances would demand.

There is talk of the government taking over industrial taxes from all municipalities. At present the cities collect taxes from industries within their borders and these taxes, along with business and property taxes, are used to defray municipal ex-demands. But the social credit government has brazenly gone ahead liquidating its own low-interest debts and ignoring the call for help sinking farther and farther into high cost debt and increasingly unable to cope with essential public works from urban municipalities and services programs. Now the government is said to be contemplating adding injury to injury by encreaching on the urban 'av field

Edmerten's situation in this regard is even worse than Calgary's, because of the large petrochemical industries just outside its eastern limits. Edmonton has seen this industrial area's taxes going to a rural municipality while it has had to provide amenities and services for the hundreds of plant employees who have flocked to live inside the city. And Edmonton is now expected to take in some large adjoining residential municipalities which would further increase the unfavorable ratio between resident and total tax base.

The Alberta government is in favor of the proposed Calgary and Edmonton annexations in line with current thinking on metropolitan development. And its own commission reported that the provincial government has an obligation to help the cities finance their annexation programs.

Editor. Post-Crescent:

I was particularly interested in your editorial Taxes and Foxes. Wed. Jan. 28th. 1959. There may not be much evidence to some that the hundreds of thousands of dollars this state has spent on bounties has done much to reduce these undesirable creatures the "fox." but to this statement I and a hundred thousand other hunters can testify there are thousands of these undesirable creatures in this West Central area of the state right now and most any hunter will tell you the partridge are almost extinct and the pheasant a close second and the cotton-tail so rare that only the city lumber yards still show a few signs that they still exist — all this game you say in effect is down due to cylical fluctua-

Are they immune to the cycle and to the fox? What is your accounting for this phenomenal success at Horicon?

In Dec. 1958 issue of Conservation Bulletin Vol. 23 No. 12 a Mr. Fred H. Wagner and C. D. Besadny wrote a lengthy article on pheasant production and stocking. What shocked me most after having read it twice was the statement that our pheasant program is costing the state. a quarter million dollars a year - but not one word about the "fox"! When I asked how we were to rid ourselves of the fox he suggested we go back to the old time fox hunts - which of course sounds good on the surface but where are you going to find the average hunter who can support at least two large and hungry fox hounds, feed them for 9 months of the year, when little or no use can be found for them? Drive 50 to 75 miles a day with a car heading-off, to say nothing of the ammunition and assorted miscellaneous expense only to wind up with a useless pelt? The legislative lobbying fraternity is so self-conscious about the whole business, moreover, that there is a certain reserve between them even when they meet accidentally outside the statehouse. There is less political night life in Madison today, it may be guessed, since the days early in the 19th century when James Duane Doty persuaded another legilsature to set the capitol between the lakes of what was to becomes the isthmus of Madison.

THE ISSUE

Lobbying and lobbyists have been issues almost from the day the territorial legislature was established long ago. Like so many other issues in the heat of partisan competition, it has been considerably distorted.

But politics is not so much concerned with facts as they are, as with what they are popularly supposed to be. Lobbying had become a fertile issue for the "outs" in recent years, who happened to be Democrats. The "ins". who happened to be Republicans, were becoming increasingly uncomfor table about the Democratic at-

On the whole, the new regulation will be a good thing. But there are some absurdities, some puritanical overtones, than annoy the sensitive man and the self-respecting politician. Lobbyists are not ogres, contrary to the politican folk-lore. They are on the whole gentlemen, well-established lawyers and trade association executives, many of them friends of leg islators and other public officials who now find an unnatural barrier in their relations with them. Some of the artificiality that is forced upon the registered lobbyist who now encounters a legislator in a hotel bar is almost ludierous.

Soviet Speech Shows Kremlin Fears, Worries

Khrushchev's Brags Betray Discontent Of Russian People

BY DAVID LAWRENCE Washington - This writer

spent two hours last night reading a complete English 50.000 - mord speech delivered a week

It is a startling revelation of the weaknesses of the Soviet Union. It was designed to show the strength and progress of the Soviets in competition with the But it betrays the fears of the Kremlin that the people any day may take things into their own hands

Numerous passages stress how eager the Soviet Union is for world peace. Surely there must be grave doubts in the minds of the people, for again and again the communist party chief assures his listeners that the Moscow government is sincerely intent on peace. Significant also is the con-

Promises of Utopia run through the document and give a feeling that something is wrong inside the Soviet Union or else it wouldn't be so necessary to paint such rosy pictures of what the future will bring. It's now a "7-year plan" which the Soviet chief outlines, but, since the Revo-Iution of 1917, there have been all kinds of "5-year plans." It is a way evidently to try to placate the discontented by pleading for more and more time in which to achieve re-

It may be doubted whether the members of the communist party who sat through seven to eight hours of speechmaking could possibly have absorbed all that was said. There is a boring repetition and a labored attempt to be convincing. Frequent references are made to the United States, especially its economic progress, and these are followed by boastful promises that America is to be overtaken in the contest for bigger and bigger production not only of machinery but of all kinds of goods and food

Every now and then it is apparent, from a reading of the Khrushchev speech, that the people aren't as responsive as they might be expect ed to be if the published reports of their attitude are taken at face value. Thus, the communist chief speaks of 980,000 meetings on the "7year plan" being held since last November at state farms. educational institutions and scientific establishments and in army and navy detachments throughout the Soviet Union, "attended by more than 70 million people." But as for response to local Soviet bodies, newspapers and periodicais as a result of those same meetings, only 650 thousand letters were received. They probably all agreed with the plan. This seems an infinitesimal number of letters. Just a few TV programs in the United States would bring many times that amount of letters - and on both sides of the question, too. But, of course, anyondy who writes a critical letter in the Soviet Urron runs the risk of

For instance: If you feel your budget can stand $1500 per month, you can get up to $300 in materials at any Lieber Yard. Another advantage of LRCP is that as your account is reduced you can keep right on getting materials you may need without changing your monthly payment as long as it does not exceed the maximum amount you specify.
